Location, Building, etc.

This Institution is located at Hagerstown, Washington County, Maryland, in one of the most healthy and beautiful sections of the country. It occupies an eminence a short distance east of the city, and affords a most pleasing and delightful view of the valley and mountains that surround it. Hagerstown has the advantage of three railroads—the Cumberland Valley, Western Maryland and Washington County, and is accessible from all parts of the country.

The Buildings, and Grounds.

The edifice is built of brick, with a centre and two wings, four stories high, and presents a splendid appearance. In the rear of the building there are extensive porticos, connected with each story, from which you have a view of the valley south, and mountains east that is unsurpassed. The chambers and parlors are large and commodious, with high ceilings and good ventilation. They are neatly carpeted and furnished, affording every possible advantage to pupils for their comfort and progress in learning. The entire building is lighted with gas, and comfortably heated. The Seminary grounds are very extensive and attractive, occupying eleven acres, and afford ample space for recreation and exercise.

Government and Discipline.

The object of the Faculty shall be to prepare the pupils for the intelligent and cheerful duties of subsequent life. The government shall, therefore, be firm, but kind, the discipline rigid, but simple, while both shall be parental, and administered in gentleness and love. The Institution shall be a home for all, and no pains spared to make it cheerful and happy.

Course of Instruction.

THE curriculum of this Institution shall be practical and thorough, rather than showy and superficial, where parents will allow their daughters to remain sufficiently long to be graduated. The study of one ancient and one modern language, a complete knowledge of all the English branches, together with some degree of musical culture, will be required before a diploma will be given. All pupils will be classified according to their attainments, and will not be promoted to higher classes until prepared.

The complementary and ornamental studies, as Ancient and Modern Languages, Drawing, Painting, Vocal and Instrumental Music may be pursued to any desired extent, under the most experienced and efficient teachers. Care, however, will be taken to preserve a proper balance in the other branches. French and German are taught by a Prussian lady, who converses with the pupils in these languages, and thus acquaints them with their conversational use. The Institution is furnished with Chemical and Philosophical Apparatus, with Anatomical and Geographical Charts, and a large library of religious and literary books.

Lectures will be delivered by gentlemen of distinguished ability, on subjects of collateral interest, with the regular course of studies.

A complete Gymnastic Apparatus has been recently added to the appliances for improvement, and has been found of great benefit to many of the pupils.

Religious Character and Duties.

Whilst the Seminary is mainly under the auspices of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, it shall be entirely Evangelical, and no effort shall be made to alienate any pupil of other Communion from the faith of their parents. Worship will be held every morning and evening, also a Bible class exercise every Sabbath afternoon.

All the pupils will accompany the Principal to Divine service in one or other of the Lutheran Churches, unless otherwise directed by their parents or guardians. No visit shall be paid to any pupil on the Lord's day, except in extreme cases.

In no ordinary case will a pupil be received for less than one term.

Tuition and Board are charged from date of entrance.

No deduction will be made for the absence of a pupil during term time, or her premature withdrawal from the Institution, unless occasioned by severe and protracted sickness, and in that case the loss will be equally shared between the patron and the Institution. A liberal deduction will be made to Ministers, and also in favor of parents sending two or more daughters.

Outfit.

A plain style of dress is recommended, and every article of wearing apparel must be marked with the pupil's name in full. Each pupil is required to furnish for her own use one pair of Sheets, one pair of Pillow Cases, one Plated Fork and Spoon, Towels, Toilet Brushes, Combs, Soap and Umbrella.

Examinations.

There will be frequent reviews of all the studies, and a public examination at the close of each term.

Miscellaneous.

Old pupils who desire to return another year should give timely notice if they wish their desks and rooms reserved. A prompt attendance at the beginning of each term is of the utmost importance to the proper organization of the classes and the progress of the pupil.

Scholars will be received at any time during the scholastic year, and tuition charged from the date of entrance.

Application of new pupils should be made at as early a day as possible. Parents should remember that to keep their daughters home beyond the usual length of the vacation, or indulge them in frequent visits to their homes, will seriously hinder their progress in study. Absences from the classes for ordinary visiting during the session will not be allowed.

In cases of sickness, the utmost attention will be given and liberal indulgences granted.

It is requested of parents to designate the persons with whom the pupil may be allowed to correspond.

Visits to the pupils by gentlemen who are strangers to the resident Principal will in no case be permitted, unless sanctioned by a letter of introduction from the parents.

Pupils will not be allowed to contract debts. Novels, promiscuous newspapers, and pamphlets will not be allowed in the Institution. The morning hours of every Saturday will be devoted to the use of the needle. Saturday is the day set apart for visitors. Visits on other days, except made by parents and guardians, are not desirable. All packages and letters intended for pupils should be directed to the care of the Principal.

The Principal will not be responsible for pupils who are not boarders, and no one will be received as a day scholar whose parents or guardians do not reside in the town.

Scholastic Year.

The Scholastic Year is divided into two terms of five months each. The first term of the ensuing school year will commence Tuesday, September 10th, and continue until February 1st, when the second term will commence, and end with the close of June, 1880. There will be a vacation of ten days during the Christmas holidays.

Letters of inquiry and business, and application for admission, can be addressed to the Principal for the incoming school year.
